It has rained every day since coming to the island. It feels like the weather matches my mood or perhaps the heavenlies are mourning with me. My father is critical. I am alone here in China with him.

I have learned so much over the last few days. First, in China you pay first then get medical care. Second, you must go out and buy all the medical supplies your family needs and take it to the hospital for their care. Third, they do not provide meals, etc. you must bring all the food to your family when they are in the hospital and wash their clothes and linens yourself. It is the strangest thing I have seen. It is critical to have a support network here if you are in the hospital.

Praise report - today when i went to the hospital my father seemed more alert. When I asked him to close his eyes he did. When I said, we are going to pray he closed his eyes and when i said Amen he opened them. I do not know if he knows me - but this is progress. He is in surgery now to put in the trachea and try to dry out his lungs and infection. His vitals are stable without medication. I plan to start a "go fund" me campaign as I need to raise around $50,000 to bring him home. I am waiting for quotes from several medical companies on the actual cost - as this is just an estimate of our return trip cost. The doctors are working with me to move him to a different part of the hospital that is less expensive. This will require me to be there 24/7 to be a careprovider. Here in China you pay first and then get care - we have spent nearly $45,000 this week alone. Thank you for your prayers - it's working!

Bedford friends, one of our own is in need of help. Shanyn Hall-Stewart is over in China helping her father who is extremely ill. She needs to bring him home to the states at a cost of $50,000 so he can get the care he needs. I know that seems like a whole lot but every dollar will help her. He needs specialized care, if you have been following her posts the past 2 weeks, she has been reporting every day throughout the day the hell she is going thru. Please if you can spare just $5, $20, $50, $100 or more.... every single dollar will help get her dad home and help her with some piece of mind to know he will be well cared for. Even if you cannot donate, you can help her with many prayers and sharing this post. Let's show her that even tho she is on the other side of the world, her little community will help her.

#BedfordStrong

From Shanyn:

Hello Friends and Family: I have created a CaringBridge account for my dad to share updates. As well, I have started a PayPal account in the name of: shanynstewart@bex.net

Donations can be made via Paypal or by sending funds directly to my attention. PM me for address. On Monday I hope to have a donation account open at Huntington Bank so that donations can be accepted there as well.

I need to raise at least $50,000 to bring my father home...every little bit counts! Would you consider sharing? If you can not donate, could you pray for us, for my father's healing restoration, and that we are able to be home for Christmas.

Please share with all your friends!

Gathering price quotes for the trip from China to USA. Twice as much as taking him to Japan - believing God for a miracle today. Press in - there are meetings happening at 9 a.m. EST. Believe God to deliver us out of China safely back to the US so we do not miss Christmas. The new quotes are between $150,000 to $160,000 to bring him all the way home. Believing God - Believing someone in the military will have favor on our situation. Praying for a break.

China Experience: As I lay here - I hear music. It plays all day and all night from a complex next door. It is this chiming oriental music. At first I found it enduring....now after 20 days I find it annoying...it is like I am trapped in some bad Chinese drama and the lip syncing is off from the characters and the subtitles are in Russian.

Update on my dad: He was practicing being off the vent when I arrived. He is having a lot of congestion and that is keeping him from breathing. They took an X-ray to see if the lung infection is improving...which it has been we will have the results tonight (China time). He is holding at 95% oxygen at 5 ml Oxygen being piped into the trachea. He has been agitated all day. He kept mouthing, "help me" over and over. I feel so helpless. Please continue to pray that the funding comes through today (USA time). We are awaiting word from the Ranger Charity and a few others. Pray the funding comes today - speak it into the heavens until it manifests.

China Experience: For those of you who do not know. China does not have central heating in their homes or buildings. This means that each room has a unit much like what you find in hotels. The doctor commented when he came to the apartment that we were wasteful Americans because we have one in each room except, hallways, and bathrooms. Most Chinese only have one in the main living area in their homes.

The moon has risen here in China. I think I will actually be able to sleep tonight, dad is stable, plans are being put together for our return, my wish to be home for Christmas is right around the corner....Praising God! I can not stop shaking! Tears of joy all around!

I am getting ready for bed here in China. I again tonight seek the Peace that passes all understanding, knowing that God is working all of this plan out for the benefit of His Kingdom. I have faith and I know that it will all work out according to His plan. I will not let the enemy try and dishearten me or get me down. I praise God for as I have said each night before bed for 16 days - my joy comes in the morning, my miracle comes in the morning because God is still on the throne ruling and reigning.

Prayer warriors: This morning SOS International will submit the medical application for their approval - the airlines must approve the flight and oxygen. Pray for immediate approval. If there is immediate approval then we can fly out on Christmas (China). Press in we are so close to the finish line!

There has been a lot of new people who have joined my page over the last few days. Some are asking what happened what lead to this. My father was working in China until the summer when his health started to fail. I usually come in the summer and visit him, however something in my spirit prompted me to come right away. My friends and family did not want me to come so close to the holidays and tax season, but it was a prompting I could not ignore. So I came here on 11/30. I was startled when I saw my dad at the airport. The strong, robust man that was my father was replaced with a fragile, frail man. His friend who is his cardiologist brought him to the hospital to pick me up because he did not want my father to drive. When my father saw me he said, "I thought I would die before ever seeing you again." And he cried. I have never seen my father cry before. We came back to my father's home for the next few days and we visited and I talked about getting him home. He said he knew he was not strong enough to make the journey. On the morning of 12/5 we were sitting at the kitchen table and he just made the comment, "I feel dizzy", slumping over the table. I ran around the other side and pulled him up. His eyes were wide open and I heard the death rattle. I pulled him to the ground and listened to his chest - no beating. My mind was racing it had been 20 years since I took CPR in high school - out of instinct I started compressions. I heard the rib cage crack and give as I pressed. I stopped and gave two breathes - I kept this up for a time - then stopped to call his friend the dr to come for help. At the same time I ran outside and started banging on all the apartments - I finally found someone the 3rd floor - who only spoke island language and not mandarin. I handed the phone to her as the dr was on the line and I ran back upstairs to start CPR again - I do not know how much time elapsed - I have guilt about this because he may have neurological damage - because of this lapse. I started CPR again - I remember looking at the clock when he collapsed and it was 9:02 a.m. - when the doctor arrived it was 9:27 a.m. The doctor arrived and 10 minutes later the ambulance - The doctor tried so hard - at one point we stopped to check for a pulse and I said stop - let him go - knowing he was going to be with God - and the doctor said, "no, I must save my friend." The hospital worked on my father for another 1.5 hours total to get him revived and on life support. We were admitted into the ICU at 11 a.m. The entire time I was screaming and yelling at my father to hold on. I was praying out loud (something that could get me arrested here in China). I was praying in the spirit. I literally screaming, rebuking the spirit of death and speaking life and healing to my dad. I was commanding the heart to beat, I was declaring every healing scripture I could remember and when words failed I prayed aloud in my prayer language. We have seen so many miracles from the moment they told me there was only a few hours - no blood pressure, organ failure - to today. He is gaining strength every day - we still do not know about brain damage but we have faith. God had a plan for me, he has a plan for my father. God is still on the throne ruling and reigning! He has made so many crooked paths straight and He will continue. So much lays ahead of us - but so much already lies behind.

China Experience: So in order to get the hospital paid the final payments I could not just wire transfer direct to the hospital. I had to go to a bank here in China, open an account and then have my US bank wire the funds. Well, nothing is simple in China. One of the doctors took me to the bank. Between our translators on our phones, broken English, broken Chinese we figured out the application after three tries! Then we waited for two hours for a banker to open our account. Problem: They had never seen an American let alone an American passport so they did not know if it were real or not. The account was opened - now just to wire the funds tomorrow - Please say a prayer - I was told this could take 2 days or more. Please pray! Please pray the funds reach the account as soon as possible so that I can clear the balance due with the hospital...so that I am clear to leave.

Prayer warriors: Specifically today we have to areas that need prayer: First, that the medical application is approved by the airline. We need this to move forward. Secondly, that the funds that were wire transferred will arrive tomorrow here in China so I can pay the bill. Please press in - there are only a few more huddles to jump over and we are off this island! I praise God for all His grace and mercy - for all that He has done to accomplish this humanly impossible task - it is by the Spirit of God that we have come so far.

China Experience: I sit quietly in the ICU waiting room listening to my Christian music. Silently praying to myself. You never realize how much you value your religious freedom until you are in a country that could arrest you for your faith. I asked my father's friend, Dr. Hu if it were a problem that I pray over my father each day. He said that I was safe within the ICU walls. He had explained to the staff that this was a standard of American and European culture. He had studied in Italy and each day the priest would come in to see the patients and pray for them and then the families would go to the chapel and light a candle. He explained that since there was no priest it was my job to pray for my father daily per our culture. During our talk he asked many questions including the name of God - Jesus. I shared my faith and explained his questions. The magnitude of it all hits you when I realize how God has protected me there has been times that I have just prayed out loud at the apartment, ambulance, walking him to his CT scan...God's hand has been on me - protecting me all the way. Today after I prayed one of the nurses spoke broken English to me telling me the massage therapist would be here 40 mins each day - I did not see her standing behind me and did not know she spoke English. God is certainly protecting me each day. Praise God.

Prayer Warrior Update: Just received a call from SOS International and they said they are still on course for our rescue on 12/30. They have received confirmation from the China Airline for Haiko to Shenzhen China. They are waiting on the approval for Cafe Pacific airlines for the flight from Hong Kong to Chicago. They said they are "chasing" it in their words. Please pray we have immediate confirmation in the morning - then I can make my reservation to leave as well. I am still awaiting the funds to appear in my bank account here in China....God's timing is perfect, His Will be done. It will all come together for the glory of His kingdom - we have all seen that He can do exceedingly abundantly more than we ask - we have seen Him move mountains over the past month. Press in and believe with me that all will come together and we will both leave the island on Tuesday 12/30 (China time) - which will be your 3 p.m. 12/29 EST.

China Experience: The day started with me going to the hospital to try and work out the bill. In China the department where your loved one is gives you a bill, you go to the cashier and pay the bill, taking the receipt back to the department as proof of payment. Problem: My ex-stepmother took all the receipts and it still showed a balance of 110,000 and 90,000. I paid the 110,000 last week but could not prove it. When I learned this yesterday I was devastated. I almost collapsed. I emailed and texted Min and begged her to scan in the receipts. My mind was racing - I was panicked and stressed. I could not believe she understood the system here and left me stranded, no money, no bank cards, and most of all no receipts. I was told yesterday that without those receipts I could not prove my payment and would have to pay the balance due before they would discharge my father. I came home and just collapsed - I slept for 6 hours but woke up more tired than before. Then I realized I had been taking pictures of everything in case I needed them translated and I found the receipts on my phone! Those photos saved the day! Praise God! I showed them to the director of ICU and she said she would note the account. Still have to wire transfer the remaining balance - But Again what the enemy meant for evil turned out for good!

China Experience: Every day I go to the ICU. Here you wait in line to see your loved one. They only allow three people in the unit at a time. The ward is an open room with beds lining the walls. When you enter you must take off your shoes and put on plastic flip flops provided, a dirty hospital gown, and a mask.

Each day the person who pushes to the front, or yells the loudest gets in first. The Chinese have no respect for personal space and think nothing of physically standing against you and touching you. Each day a family with like 10 members rushes off the elevator and pushes their way to the front - and people let them. Not today. I arrived early. I stood with my nose against the door, legs spread, arms on my hips... when they started to push I yelled as loud as I could: BO! BO! BO! which means, no, no, no. They were shocked....but backed away. Maybe I will learn this Chinese thing after all 😊

China Experience: So I did not realize when I got to the hospital this afternoon that I would have to do so much running. Well, of course it was pouring...par for the course. I have learned to balance on the back of a motorcycle with my umbrella bent to shield me as much as possible. My father's friend, Dr. Liang took me to the director of the hospital to prove that my ex-step mother had left the country with the receipts for my previous payments. That took some time, much talk, but they issued the proper documents and so I am in the clear. He and Dr. Li gave witness to the receipts on my phone. Praise God! I only need to pay the balance. I received confirmation from my bank in the US that the transfer is complete, however, it is not showing up in my account in China. Please pray it is here quickly, the hospital keeps asking me where it is. As well, I had to work with the director of ICU, Dr. Li and Dr. Liang to create a certificate of diagnosis for the airlines access and clearance. We worked on that and they gave me a rough draft to send to SOS International. Dr. Li will finish the rest of the certificate tomorrow. You know I do not think anyone out there could possibly understand the hoops one must go through in this situation - maybe I should publish a guide book - "Steps to Take To Airlift Your Patient".

China Experience: Here is in China there is no social, charitable, or government program to assist those that are disabled or elderly. Here the family is supposed to be the support network. Each day my father would go down to the park where there were several handicap people, a woman who was crippled, a blind girl and each day he would put money into their cups. He said even though he did not have much he had more than them. I am sure they are wondering where the American has gone.

China Experience: The entrepreneur in me sees opportunity sitting here in China. First, I would open a floor mat delivery service. There are no door mats in any building/hospital. This lends the floors to always be wet and slippery. If they only realized there is a better way -

Second, I would start a homecare service. Nothing like this exists in China. And as China has developed there is a lot of money here - where children both work and can not take time off to care for their elderly parents.

Once thing with the Chinese - they can copy - but they are not good at innovation.

Thank you, please keep praying, two keys elements must come together for this all to happen - final airline approval and the funds being present in China - but we believe God is bringing it all together.

Praise Report..Shanyn Hall-Stewart has finally made it safe back home from China, however her critically ill father is still on a different flight with a medical team. Please continue to pray for her dad's health as well as his safe flight. Thank you prayer warriors for your continuous prayers in this situation. Praise God for His faithfulness and answered prayers

Donny Stewart thought of you today. I was laying here sleeping and I heard the neighboring generator kick on - and waited for the service company to start ours....nope! We complain about our spotty wifi but remember while in China they turn out the lights for no reason! Forced me to get 7 hours of sleep!
